Angel investors are individuals who invest their own money in early-stage businesses. They are typically looking for businesses with high growth potential and a strong team of entrepreneurs. If you can convince an angel investor to invest in your business, it can give you the financial resources you need to get your business off the ground and start growing.

However, getting funded by angel investors is not easy. There is a lot of competition for funding, and only a small percentage of businesses are successful in raising money from angels.

That's where this book comes in. What Every Angel Investor Wants You To Know is the ultimate guide to getting funded by angel investors. It covers everything you need to know, from how to find investors to how to pitch your business.
